

'Since I wasn't allowed to go to school by my grandparents, I would try to get inside my brother's school building to see how classrooms looked like. One of my brother's female classmate tried to teach me to write my name in English. I was trying to learn those alphabets with sincere efforts. But one day, they caught me while climbing the school wall. Although they spared me with a warning, but ensured that I never enter the school again. It's been 22 years now, that I'm still awaiting to write my name in English. I think my youngest daughter won't keep me away from my dream!'
